

Equivalence Relations

The binary relation R is an equivalence relation when R is reflexive, symmetric, and transitive

We often write $a \sim_R b$ for $a R b$ when R is an equivalence, or just $a \sim b$ when it is clear or unimportant which R is intended.

An equivalence relation R can be seen as a weak equality